Financing regional improvements

By Steve Marschke

The chambers of commerce of Sacramento and West Sacramento sponsored a "power breakfast" with their respective mayors and other policy makers two weeks ago, in a gesture of support for the two cities' joint planning of their Sacramento riverfronts.

The West Sacramento chamber's participation was spearheaded by Steve Roberts, the chamber's executive director.

West Sacramento mayor Cindy Tuttle spoke briefly, expressing strong support for the plan that will allow the two cities to coordinate the features on facing sides of the Sacramento River. The planning is to be done Sasaki Associates and consultant Andrew Plescia, both of whom have already worked on the separate riverfront plans of both cities.

Sacramento Mayor Joe Serna attracted attention with a speech calling for the regional funding of things which he says will benefit the whole region.

Michael Picker, the mayor's chief of staff, later told the News-Ledger that his city's officials were impressed by the inter-jurisdictional efforts of places like San Antonio, Texas, and Denver, Colorado.

"In Denver, they got several different counties together and got a sales tax and bonded an airport, a freeway, and Mile High Stadium," said Picker. Major regional improvements such as these are "hard to address jurisdiction by jurisdiction."

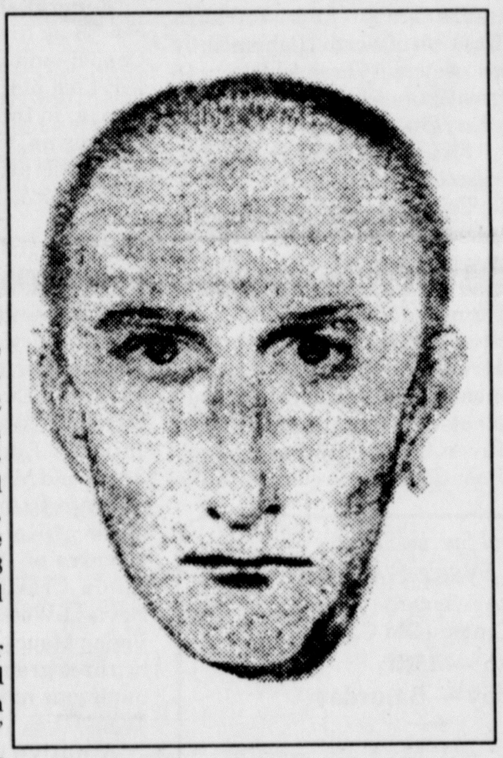

Picker said the waterfront shared by West Sacramento and Sacramento lends itself to a joint effort.

"The plan is great," he commented. "But there's a long way between having a plan and having a vital waterway that is a regional asset."

Picker also suggested that a regional solution will be needed for West Sacramento to have its way with Highway 275, the state route which the Tower Bridge from West Sacramento. Local officials would like to turn 275 into a surface street to better serve the city's future waterfront downtown.

He said he understands that this plan is currently being blocked in the legislature by interests from surrounding areas, who do not wish to lose their current freeway access on 275 to the Capitol.

Carjacker is sought

SUSPECT IN CARJACKING

West Sacramento Police have released an artist's rendering of a man they believe was involved in a local carjacking Oct. 29.

The man reportedly approached the victim from behind at about 12:45 p.m. in West Sacramento, showed a handgun, and stole the victim's 1988 Pontiac Grand Am.

"The car was recovered last night in San Francisco," Detective Florence Luna said Tuesday. "As far as we know, it was stripped and wrecked, and no one was arrested with it."

Police believe the suspect is no longer in the area, she added.

The suspect is described as a white man about six feet tall, 160 to 180 pounds, with dirty blond or light brown hair cut very short, and possibly a large loop ear ring in his left ear. He is described as unkempt in appearance, with a peculiar walk and bad posture. Anyone with information is asked to call 372-2461 or 372-2044.

Det. Luna said that the three carjackings reported in the city in recent days appear unrelated to each other. Of the three crimes, she said, the one involving the Grand Am stolen Oct. 29 is the only one appearing to be a random carjacking. In the other two crimes, she said, there may have been a relationship between the suspect and victim or other motives involved.

Larry Gossett:

City public works director tenders resignation for 1995

A press release from the City of West Sacramento, verbatim:

"West Sacramento City Manager Joe Goeden announced today that he has received and accepted a retirement notice from the City's Director of Public Works Larry Gossett. Mr. Gossett provided the City with his notice of intention to retire effective March 31, 1995, in order to leave the City time to recruit a replacement and allow for a smooth transition.

"Larry Gossett's knowledge of the history and operations of the Public Works Department will be hard to replace," said Goeden. "He's made many friends in his tenure with this community, and will surely be missed.

"Mr. Gossett was hired by the East Yolo Community Services District in 1986 as Utilities Director. When the City of West Sacramento incorporated in 1987, he became its first Director of Public Works. In Gossett's early years with the District, he was instrumental in resolving difficulties the District was having at its wastewater treatment plant. Recently, he has also played an active role in working with CH2M Hill on the current improvements being made to the City's system.

"Mr. Gossett began his public sector career in 1960 as a District Engineer for the Siuslaw National Forest in Oregon. After receiving several promotions, he left the National Forest Service in 1966 for active military duty as an Army officer. He served two tours of duty in Viet Nam as a Green Beret. Upon completion of his military career, he retired as a Lieutenant Colonel in 1985. He received numerous formal decorations for 'valor in combat' and 'superior meritorious performance.' "

Neither Gossett nor City Manager Goeden could be reached for comment Tuesday.

Assistant City Manager Carol Richardson said that she had "worked with Larry since I came here, and I respect him as a professional and as an individual, so I'm going to be sorry to see him go."

Gossett's department, public works, has been under scrutiny since May of 1993, when the News-Ledger and then other media began reporting troubles at the city's sewage plant. The city has begun changing and upgrading procedures at the plant.

The plant's superintendent, Dale Klever, resigned from that post last month.

Trustees, city council worry about students

By Steve Marschke

Following traffic accidents in which two local students have been hit and slightly injured in front of their campuses since school started, city and school officials have started a campaign to ask parents to driver safer.

"We have concerns about all the campuses," said Stuart Knox, president of the Washington Unified School District. He added that the problem occurs when parents are dropping off or picking up their kids at school.

"People, in a lot of cases, are not obeying traffic laws. They're double parking, and calling their kids across the street away from their school."

The accidents have occurred in front of Elkhorn Elementary and Golden State Middle School, said Knox, although in neither case was the child seriously injured.

But Knox and Mayor Cindy Tuttle have signed a joint letter to local parents asking them to obey traffic laws. They are asked

Ultimate city limits still unknown, un-studied

By Steve Marschke

A "sphere of influence study" to determine the city of West Sacramento's ultimate boundaries within Yolo County is on hold.

"Basically, we haven't found any property owners to fund," said Stephen Patek, director of community development for West Sacramento.

Before the latest economic recession, developers were knocking at the door in attempts to get West Sacramento to annex land both to the north and south of the city to develop their projects. Separate proposals from Merwin Associates and Frank Ramos involved land to the north of the city, and Live Oak was heavily interested in a golf course, hotel and residential development to the south. But no such proposals are currently on the front burner, and Patek said.

"We have no applications in at this time (for developments that would require annexation)," he commented.

Because a "sphere of influence study" would require time and effort from the city and county, Patek added that it is not now being pursued for West Sacramento.

"Given the financial situation of the city, and the demands on staff rom developments inside the city, we aren't pursing it."

Dr. David Miller:

WUSD trustees vote to extend contract of new superintendent

By Steve Marschke

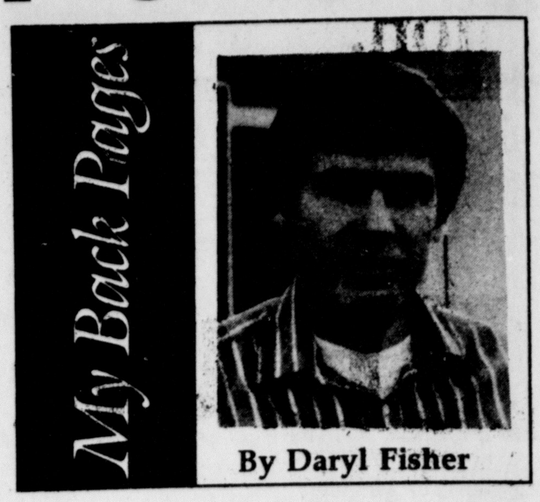

Trustees of the Washington Unified School District voted last night to extend the contract of new superintendent Dr. David Miller.

Miller, who began as top staffer in the district in March, had come into the meeting with a three-year contract that took him into early 1997. The board voted in closed session to extend this contract another year.

"The board felt he has performed well since he's been with us and he deserves the support of the board and the acknowledgement that he's doing a good job for the district," board president Stuart Knox said after the meeting.

Miller came to W.U.S.D. from a district in Fresno after previous superintendent Dr. Del Alberti was squeezed out by a previous majority on the school board.

Negative campaigning: thank heavens election is over

By the time this column appears, the California general election of November 8, 1994 will be over--THANK GOD! We will all know if Governor Pete Wilson -- a moderate Republican by nature -- was successful in using the fear which surrounds issues like illegal immigration, crime and the death penalty to get himself re-elected. We will also know if Dianne Feinstein's nasty--negative ads were more successful than all the ones paid for by Michael Huffington. And the same goes for the low road campaigns of--among many others--Gray Davis, Cathie Wright, Phil Angelides, Matt Fong, Tom Umberg, Dan Lungren, Chuck Quackenbush, Art Torres, Tim Lefever, Vic Fazio, Maurice Johannessen and our own Michael McGowan.

We will also know if we're scared enough of illegal aliens to turn our teachers and health care professionals into INS agents and if the tobacco industry was able to sell us the big lie of Proposition 188. Most of all, we will all know -- as if we didn't already -- that no great democracy can continue to put up with this kind of garbage every two years.

For more months than I care to count, I (and I'm sure you, too) have been unmercifully subjected to one negative political ad after another. It truly seemed like no matter how often I pushed the television clicker, there was still another thirty-second political spot right in front of my eyes informing me of yet another horrible reason why I should not vote for some awful candidate. Then, when I could no longer bear to even turn my television set on, my mailbox started to fill up with some of the most vile political literature I've ever run across.

"It's just politics as usual," my wife explained to me as we took turns wadding up and throwing away last Friday's dozen or so nasty political flyers we got in the mail. "Don't get so upset."

"But look at all the effort and money that went into sending us this crap," I said, actually admiring some of the glossy art work and catchy political phrases that seemed to be a part of each pamphlet. "And look at this," I added, holding up an anti-Johannessen flyer, "this is the third or fourth different one Mike has sent us. I already know Johannessen is a jerk. I don't need to be reminded of it a half-dozen times."

"Mike just wants to win."

"And I hope he does," I said, "but whatever happened to people caring about the means they use to get to their ends. It'd be nice if some politician somewhere would show a little interest in taking the high road."

"But that's just it -- there is no high road anymore," my wife said -- to which I had no comeback.

Anyway, I had finally managed to put these and other related thoughts out of my mind until earlier today -- Sunday afternoon no less -- when some idiot walked up my driveway, cornered me in front of my flower bed, and deposited yet an-

"SHOWDOWN AT THE STICK":

The NFL's most anticipated game of the year between the three-point favorite 49ers (7-2) and the Dallas Cowboys (8-1) will arrive at 1 p.m. Sunday at Candlestick Park.

Dallas has beaten the 49ers three consecutive times, twice in NFC title games with one of those championship wins at Candlestick. Defense is the key to this "Showdown at the Stick". The 49ers used every loophole in the salary cap to sign free agents Ken Norton from Dallas, Gary Plummer from San Diego and Ricky Jackson from New Orleans; cornerbacks Deion Sanders from Atlanta and Toi Cook from New Orleans; and defensive end Richard Dent from Chicago. The defense has improved over the last four weeks with the secondary being the strong link.

But if Steve Young and the 49ers are going to get the monkey off their backs, they will need a very strong pass rush and will need to hold All-Pro running back Emmitt Smith to under a hundred yards rushing. The 49ers scalped the Redskins 37-22 on Sunday and Dallas crushed the Giants 37-10 on Monday night, so both teams will meet on Sunday feeling good about their chances to lock up the home field advantage in the playoffs.

The Cowboys will play without starting wide receiver Alvin Harper, who may have a possible season-ending knee injury, suffered on Monday night.

Anybody who knows me or reads my weekly column can figure out that I love the 49ers and always predict a Niners victory! Well, since I am 0-3 on my picks in Niners vs. the Boys, this week I am picking the Cowboys to win! Reverse psychology!! Go 49ers!!

Big George Foreman upset the undefeated Michael Moorer and won the WBA/IBF heavyweight title twenty years after he lost it to Muhammad Ali. Foreman knocked out Moorer with a short right hand to the chin in the tenth round to become, at the age of 45, the oldest heavyweight champ in history. Just think -- Larry Holmes, who is also 45 years old, wants to challenge George for the title!! A combined age of 91!!

Speaking of boxing, the Reno Hilton has a fight card on Thursday, Nov. 10, featuring Johnny Avila and Angelo Nunez. West Sac's Willie Jorrin is on the card in a six-round prelim. Tickets are priced at $25 and fights start at 6 p.m.

See ya next week!!

News-Ledger Editorial

Negotiating with Sacramento: one hand over our wallet

Joe Serna, mayor of Sacramento, says he wants some sort of "regionalism," in which citizens of Sacramento County, Yolo County, and other nearby areas work together to fund things that benefit the common good, such as keeping the Gold Miners football team in Sacramento.

Serna's history suggests that he will only favor such plans when his city gets the lion's share of the benefit and the lamb's share of the cost. During the competition for the new state office buildings, for example, he is the one who suggested that Sacramento had some kind of manifest destiny to get all the state's new office buildings, and West Sacramento "ought to compete for the warehouses."

Just how much does West Sacramento benefit from the Sacramento Gold Miners? How much is it worth taxing this city to support a Sacramento sports team which tends to generate jobs and tax revenues primarily across the river?

The answer to both questions is "not much."

And if we're going to be examining regional funding for things that benefit the whole region, let's look at the Port of Sacramento. This is a true regional facility, serving as an export hub not just for West Sacramento (how many loggers and rice growers are there within West Sacramento city limits?), but for the greater Sacramento area and beyond. In fact, most of the workers involved at the port live not in West Sacramento but in Sacramento and surrounding areas.

It is West Sacramento which disproportionately bears the secondary costs of the port. Think of the barge canal and deepwater channel, which serve the port but split West Sacramento in two pieces. How many tens of millions of dollars will West Sacramento spend to build bridges across this moat, connecting the city's southern and northern halves? How many millions will it spend widening and improving Harbor Blvd. and Industrial Blvd., to better serve the port? Or on relocating rail lines so that residents and industrial rail traffic can co-exist?

Surely, these costs would be a natural for regional funding.

Or as an alternative to much of the bridge construction work, perhaps we can simply fill in part of the barge canal with dirt, leaving only an underground culvert where Stone Lock is located, and allowing the city to run as many lanes of vehicle and rail traffic as it pleases across the canal, at relatively low cost. This idea is not new; it was proposed several years ago by a visiting planner. But it does have impacts. The out-of-service locks connecting the port to the Sacramento River would be closed forever to pleasure boat traffic, with the only possible mitigation a new (and expensive) set of locks further downstream.

Filling in the barge canal, then, would pose an inconvenience to boaters based on the Sacramento River, since it would deprive them of a potential shortcut to the Bay. Some West Sacramento boaters would be affected; more Sacramentans would. No doubt Sacramento's leaders would fight tooth and nail to prevent this.

But are they willing to help pay for the bridges West Sacramento needs to build to keep this shortcut viable?

Doubtful.

Sacramento officials are probably only interested in the idea of regionalism when it gives them a one-sided benefit. And West Sacramento, like other counties and jurisdictions in the greater Sacramento area, should keep one hand over its wallet while talking to Serna and Sacramento. With all cities and counties so tight for funds right now, it is hard to conceive of a regional need that takes priority over a local one.

Letters to the Editor

Schools & traffic

An open letter to the citizens of West Sacramento:

We are writing to ask for your help on a most serious issue.

As many of you may be aware, within the last three months, two of our students were struck by automobiles in front of their elementary schools. Although both students are fine, these incidents are most disturbing.

Unfortunately, incidents such as these are often caused by well-intended parents who are trying to keep their children safe by driving them to and from school. It is important that those of you who do drop off and pick up your children do not compromise student safety. As parents, there are several things you can do to minimize the threat posed by school traffic:

1. Obey all traffic laws. This includes not double parking in front of the schools.

2. Drop off and pick up your children on the school side of the street. This will eliminate the need for children to cross the street between waiting cars.

3. If your children walk to school, have them do so when crossing guards are on duty. If crossing guards have been posted at your school, they are there because of the threat posed by heavy traffic.

Public safety is stressed in our classrooms. Please reinforce those lessons by the examples you set.

Thank you for being part of the solution.

Mystified

I am completely mortified at the notion of the Sacramento Yolo Port District for its intention to hang another tax on the land owners of all Sacramento and just the eastern part of Yolo County. We just got through paying off the bond to dredge and build this monster located in the middle of West Sacramento and the majority of the land owners who will foot the bill never receive one penny for our investment. We all know when they get their hands in our pocket it is for the long haul, the big industries are the ones that will benefit for our hard earned tax dollars such as the grain growers of which are located out of the tax region the railroads and the port personal, etc. etc. About 80 or 90 percent of the targeted tax payers have absolutely nothing to gain for the rip off of their tax money, why target just east Yolo County the majority of the grain growers are located outside of the tax region.

This whole thing has a bad smell to it, why can't the voters decide the fate of this multi-million rip off which we will be paying on for ever? I certainly hope the leaders of Sacramento and Yolo counties get their act together and take a good hard look at how much it will benefit our neighborhood before they hang this burden on us.

Why have two port districts just 50 miles apart?

I also would like to know what happened to the money Vic Fazio got approved for dredging the channel deeper? It must have had wings and flew south. I think it should be privatized so the people it effects can vote on it. I would not think it would be constitutional to tax one part of a county and exempt the other part, oh what the heck, no one seems to pay any attention to the constitution any more anyway. Illegal aliens swarming across our borders and being rewarded for breaking the law. If I break the law, I either pay a hefty fine or go to jail. Oh well, I have worked and payed taxes most of my life, so I must deserve to be punished if I do the wrong thing? Disgusting. Maybe we can go belly up and start all over again?

very little hard information about the programs that were to be supported by candidates against crime, for education, for and against immigrants, etc. but little on the hard answers.

A public policy question for the citizens which we hope will be addressed is: What is the long run effect of the substitution of a war of flyers for a rational debate on the issues and the qualifications of the candidates? Did the voters decide on the basis of the charges and countercharges in the flyers and can we expect to have an ever escalating price on winning an office in California? Does this process keep qualified candidates from entering the field? When the records are all in for the local senatorial race, it will be clear that reported costs are extraordinary: over $900,000 for Michael McGowan and a similar sum for Johanessen.

This public policy issue should be debated this session in the legislature. Can the winner of such costly race give us a solution?

Dental help

When first formed in 1978, the Yolo County Dental Health Foundation's sole charter was to fund critical dental care for children of the working poor. Although originally underwritten by Yolo County, today the foundation must rely exclusively upon the generous donations of individuals and organizations. The fall is our traditional time for outreach into the community to generate support for our services. This year we do so in tribute to one of the early and most outstanding members of our board, Ada Merhoff, who succumbed to cancer last January.

As a concerned citizen and community activist, Ada was a tireless crusader for the health and welfare of the undeserved. In 1993 the Yolo County Health Care Access Coalition created the Annual Ada Merhoff Award to honor individuals who demonstrate the selfless dedication to others that she exemplified. Just as Ada's firm determination and boundless energy had a way of "making lemonade from lemons," it is the foundation's wish to establish a special fund in her memory to allow Ada's friends, family and admirers to carry on with helping others in her name.

Monies from the Ada Merhoff Memorial Fund will be specifically earmarked to care for the critical dental needs of impoverished children in two primary areas of Yolo County. One will be West Sacramento where Ada served for years as a board member of the Salud Clinic. The other will be for families from the rural areas of the Capay Valley that Ada loved so dearly. As a Sierra Club member, Ada was also responsible for the clearing of a scenic hiking trail in the Napa/Yolo region that was recently dedicated in her name.

Though there are many honors by which to remember this great lady, the foundation's memorial fund will more importantly also carry on her wonderful work. We hope community members will join us in remembering AND funding Ada's hopes for a better, healthier youth by mailing a tax-deductible check designated for the Ada Merhoff Memorial Fund and payable to: YCDHF, P.O. Box 404, Davis, 95617.

Any amount will be greatly appreciated and any amount will make a difference! 93 % of all funds raised go directly into dental care for low-income children!

Preparing for trouble:

Being ready for job loss

From Martha J. Lewis
Personal Financial Planner
IDS Financial Services

MARTHA J. LEWIS
Personal financial planner

The possibility of job loss in these slow economic times has made many people concerned about their financial futures. Unfortunately, it's taking longer than ever for people to find new jobs once they've been laid off, and when they find new jobs, their income is often less than what they were making before.

The good news is that there are ways to minimize the pain of a job loss. Here are some steps you may consider to prepare for the possibility of a job loss:

Spend wisely and build a cash reserve. Saving is important in good economic times, but it is critical if there is a job layoff on the horizon. Some things to keep in mind when deciding how much to save in a cash reserve include the amount of severance pay that may be available, the increased cost of insurance after leaving the job, medical insurance deductibles that may need to be paid in an emergency, and job-hunting expenses.

Know your rights when it comes to benefits. The Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1986 (COBRA) rules mandate that all companies with more than 20 employees must offer group insurance coverage for a minimum of 18 months after you leave the job. The cost of this coverage to the former employee is generally higher than when you were employed by the company. Even so, it often makes sense to continue coverage through a former employer rather than trying to find new insurance coverage after a job layoff. The group coverage also can help tide you over on your new job if you are facing a waiting period to obtain coverage under your new company's plan.

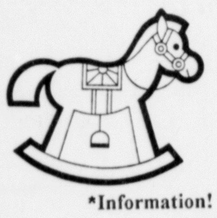

Your former employer must notify you within 44 days of the event that makes you eligible for COBRA benefits. You then have 60 days to decide whether or not you want coverage. It's important that you respond to your former employer within this "grace period." If you don't, your rights to coverage may expire and you will no longer be entitled to extension of group coverage.

Take care in rolling over retirement money. Congress has passed a new law, taking effect in 1993, that will require former employers to withhold 20% of lump-sum pension distributions if the money is withdrawn and not transferred to a new employer's plan or to an IRA. And if the employee isn't 59-and-a-half, an additional 10% penalty will be assessed for early withdrawal.

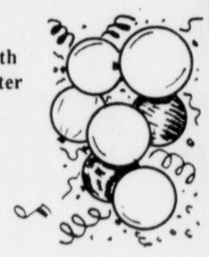

Start keeping an eye on job opportunities. It's always a good idea to have a network of contacts who may lead you to future jobs. Compare some of the job opportunities you hear about through your network to your current situation. Is it likely that you can match your salary elsewhere? How long is it likely to take to find a new job? This type of research into job opportunities also will help when it comes to evaluating different salary and benefit packages in job offers.

There's nothing like planning ahead to put you more at ease in tough economic times. Remember that before you make any financial decisions, it may be to your benefit to consult a financial advisor.

Police log

Nov. 1, 1:30 a.m.

A 23 year old West Sacramento man battered and injured his girlfriend. He was arrested.

Nov. 2, 6:15 p.m.

Police were dispatched to Vermont Ave. in response to a reported trespasser. When they got there, the 29-year old suspect had left on foot, but a witness said that he had driven a vehicle to the scene. A license check on the vehicle showed it had been stolen Oct. 7. Officers staked out the auto, and saw the suspect return and get inside it. They arrested him at gunpoint.

Nov. 2, 7:35 p.m.

A 27-year old West Sacramento man was reportedly seen hot-wiring a vehicle on Washington St. After contacting the man, police learned there was a warrant for his arrest. At the police station, they found he had paper belonging to the owner of the stolen car in his possession, and he was charged with possession of stolen property and a stolen automobile.

Nov. 3, 8:25 p.m.

Officers were dispatched to a Pine St. apartment in response to a stabbing. A 50-year old female and male victim both stated that the woman had stabbed the man, who had puncture wounds in his chest and lower back. The two had been cohabitants for several months. The victim was taken away by ambulance, and the woman was arrested.

Nov. 4, 3 p.m.

A 26-year old Sacramento woman was detained for trying to use a fake $100 bill to buy about $100 of goods at a West Capitol Ave. store. The bill showed green ink in some of the wrong places, and did not fare well in comparison to a real one. The woman was arrested for trying to use counterfeit currency and for outstanding warrants.

Nov. 4, 9:52 p.m.

Officers were dispatched to a Meadow Rd. residence after a report of spousal abuse. A woman told police her 39-year old husband struck her in the nose, injuring her. The man was charged with spousal abuse and with resisting arrest after he got "physical" with officers.

Nov. 5, 1 a.m.

A suspicious vehicle was reported at a West Capitol Ave. supermarket. A license check showed that the 1985 Cutlass was stolen. The 45-year old male driver and 43-year old female passenger, both of West Sacramento, were arrested.

Nov. 6, 1:45 p.m.

A citizen was detained after a disturbance on Harbor Blvd. The 38-year old man reportedly lived at a Sacramento mission. While police were waiting on a warrants check on the man, he consented to a search. Police found a pack of cigarettes in a sleeve, and inside was a plastic wrapper containing a dark brown substance. A crack pipe was found in an outer pocket. The brown substance later tested positive for opiates. The man was arrested.

Nov. 6, 6 p.m.

Shots were reported from a vehicle.

Nov. 6, 9 p.m.

Three 9-1-1 calls reported a 43-year old West Sacramento man causing a disturbance outside a trailer on Pecan St. Police found that the suspect was too intoxicated to care for his own safety, and the man asked them to arrest him. The officers obliged.

Nov. 7, 3:42 a.m.

A 76-year old woman with Alzheimer's Disease left her West Capitol Ave. trailer. Her husband said the woman didn't think she lived there. She was located and returned home.

Nov. 7, 6:43 a.m.

A school employee reported an alarm going off and a VCR missing from Westmore Oaks Elementary School. It was unknown whether a burglary had occurred, or if the VCR had been taken home by a teacher.

RCHS drama opens run of 'Love Letters'

The play's the thing for the next two weekends in West Sacramento with the opening of the River City fall play "Love Letters" by AR Gurney. The play opens tomorrow night at 8 p.m. at Yolo High School, 930 West Acres Road. This production represents the first production by a student group and is a tribute to the record of the Thespians under the direction of Roy Engoron and Thespian Troop 3129.

Reservations are taken for November 18, the Party Night for other performance tickets are $6 at the door general admission and $5 for seniors and students. River City plays are known for their professional productions -- with state of the art lights and sound and great student performance. Graduates of the program have either used the play experience to have professional experience in drama and film or as good background for careers as diverse as engineering, governmental administration and journalism.

Twice year, spring and fall, West Sacramento has live theater; the community is invited to share this community experience; it is more than a high school play, it is theater at its best.

other political flyer in my hand. "Have a nice day," he said as he smiled and began to make his way to the next house.

I looked down at the single piece of paper and read, "Before Patrick Purdy gunned down 36 children and teachers in a Stockton schoolyard, he had already been arrested 15 times. Michael McGowan set him free. Now, the man who set Patrick Purdy free wants to be our senator."

"Hey!" I yelled at the man as he continued to walk away from me. "Why don't you try passing out something positive? This is garbage!"

"I'm sorry you feel that way," he said without even bothering to look back.

I returned my eyes to the flyer and read on: "Thanks to McGowan, Purdy was able to legally buy the semi-automatic weapons he used that fateful day he walked onto the Cleveland Elementary School playground. But for Michael McGowan, it was all in a day's work."

"This one is really sick," I said to my wife as I handed her the flyer. "It's hard to believe that even a politician can stoop so low."

"See," she said after reading it, "Mike was just fighting fire with fire."

As our politicians continue to hire expensive consultants to better fight fire with fire, I wonder if any of them actually realize what's happening in this nation? Hey guys -- and gals -- we're starting to believe all this crap you're saying about each other! We're beginning to accept as gospel that you're all a bunch of liars and con-artists who don't care about anything except getting yourselves elected and reelected. We're also starting to believe that you're simply no longer relevant to our lives or the country we want to leave to our children.

And with Veteran's Day just around the corner, there's a whole bunch of us who are even beginning to wonder if any of you--and I'm talking Republicans and Democrats alike--are really worthy of representing this wonderful country that so many fine young men and women have given their lives to defend.

Long-time local celebrates 90th birthday with friends

Approximately 150 relatives and friends gathered on Saturday, Oct. 29, at the ILWU Hall in West Sacramento's Broderick neighborhood to honor Virginia Ortiz on her 90th birthday.

The celebration was hosted by her children, daughters Margie Clark, Alma Rains and Frances Mendoza of Broderick; Paula Emperador of Sacramento, and Leonard Ortiz of Galt; with a big assist from several of her grandchildren and great grandchildren.

She was escorted to the hall from her home in a horse-drawn buggy by her daughter, Margie Clark, sister Pearl Phillips of Petaluma, and brother Gene Long of Sacramento.

The celebration included the reading of a proclamation from the City Council of West Sacramento congratulating her on her birthday, of a letter of greeting from Assemblyman Tom Hannigan, and a greeting from first couple Bill and Hillary Rodham Clinton.

Juanita Lopez, president of the East Yolo Seniors Club, presented Virginia with a plaque from the group in appreciation of her many years of service to area seniors. Also, a certificate of deposit for $5,000 has been designated by the East Yolo Seniors Club for a future senior center quilt room in Virginia's name.

Leonard Ortiz regaled the guests with his stories of Broderick during his childhood in the '30s and '40s, and a musical program concluded the festivities.

Musicians and dancers included daughters Margie Clark and Alma Rains, granddaughters Cecile Freeman, Kathleen Van Baaren and Anita Russell, grandsons Jeff and Bill Collins, grandson-in-law Stephen Russell, and great-granddaughters Tracey Freeman, Jody Collins and Tiffany Collins.

Virginia was born Oct. 31, 1904 in Indian territory -- now the state of Oklahoma.

After spending her early years in Oregon, she and her family moved to Sacramento in 1918. Virginia recalls vividly the trip over the mountains between Oregon and California in a wagon drawn by two horses. She graduated from Sacramento High School, 18th and K streets, in 1923. In 1925, she married Julian Salvador Ortiz (now deceased) and settled in Broderick, where she has lived for 70 years.

Virginia worked for the Washington Unified School District as a cafeteria manager from 1952 until her retirement in 1968. She has devoted much of the past 25 years to volunteer work with the Broderick Christian Center's senior citizens' programs, as well as the East Yolo Seniors Club.

In 1973, she was awarded the United Christian Centers' Community Service Award for her work in the Broderick-Bryte neighborhoods.

Virginia has six children, 24 grandchildren and 25 great grandchildren, with another to be born in February.

not to double park, or have their kids cross the street in front of campus on foot.

Knox said officials have discussed requesting additional enforcement help from local police, but have not yet chosen to go that route.

"We want to try to do this incrementally," he said. "We have discussed law enforcement intervention, but that is not anything we're going to pursue at this time."

A reporter visiting Golden State Elementary School last week saw parents frequently dropping their children off in the morning across Carrie Street from the campus, and the kids dashing across the street to their school. Occasionally, cars would double park in a small mass near the school entrance, discharging youngsters into a cluster of automobiles.

Opening lead — queen of diamonds.

It is certainly not unusual for a contract to fail because declarer lacks communication with dummy. There are sometimes valuable tricks in dummy that are out of reach because declarer cannot cross the table to cash them.

Consider this deal where South can point to 13 winners — three spades, one heart, two diamonds and seven clubs. However, there's one big stumbling block — the three spade winners are easier to count than to cash.

Let's say South wins the diamond lead, draws trumps, and plays the A-x of hearts in an effort to reach dummy. In the actual hand, this method of play fares badly. East cashes the K-J of hearts, exits with a diamond, and the slam goes down two.

But there is a better line of play available, and declarer should adopt it. Leading the A-x of hearts wins only if West has certain special heart holdings, and this is basically only a matter of luck.

Instead, South should make the extraordinary play of leading the three of trumps toward dummy at trick two! He should be willing to lose a trump trick to the missing nine in order to create a sure entry to the A-K-Q of spades.

There is a far better chance of making the slam by deliberately losing a trump trick than by drawing trumps and then leading hearts. True, declarer gives away a trick he doesn't have to lose. One rarely encounters a bargain like that on the exchange mart these days.
